X3WATCH

In today's message, you will hear about an accountability software called X3watch, which is designed to help with online integrity. Here's how it works: when you browse the Internet and access a site that may contain questionable material, the program records the site name. A person of your choice (an accountability partner) then receives an email containing all questionable sites you may have visited. For more information or to purchase X3watch, visit www.x3watch.com.
